CHINESE BILL.

Special.—Hitt of Illinois supplemented Lamb's favorable report of the Chinese bill yesterday with a minority report, signed by himself, Rice and other republican members of the committee on foreign affairs, who voted against reporting it in committee. Hitt's report goes over the points made by Rice in his report from the sub-committee, viz.: That not a sufficient number of Chinese have landed, since the enactment of the present law, to justify the enactment of the stringent bill proposed by the Pacific coast delegation, and that the proposed bill is a direct violation of the terms of the treaty with China. Hitt quotes the decision of Judge Lowell as a model of construction, and prefers it to the decision of Justice Field. He does not report a substitute bill, but contents himself with commending rejection of the majority report.

THE KEIFER-BOYNTON INQUIRY.

The Ex-Speaker again takes the Witness Stand—Testimony of Other Witnesses.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The Keifer-Boynton committee continued the investigation this afternoon. Coleman, Keifer's attorney, and General Hunton, both at one time attorneys for McGarrahan in the prosecution of his claims, were examined and testified that they, while in charge of the case, had not heard of General Boynton as being connected with the claim.

Keifer was then placed on the stand and subjected to a rigid cross-examination by General Boynton's counsel. He swore positively that he was not in General Boynton's office on the night of March 1, 1883, nor on the night of March 2, 1883 and did not think he had been in the office or held any conversation with General Boynton on the 27th or the 28th of February. When asked as to his conversation with Representative Dunnell, relative to the McGarrahan claim, he said he had at first made what was a very common answer with him with respect to such matters, that he would do the very best he could; but on the second request from Dunnell, had told him it was impossible to grant the request. He thought this was after his interview with General Boynton.

A WITNESS WHO KNOWS NOTHING.

A witness named Gardner, of Baltimore, who described himself as a claim agent, was called. He stated that he had been subpenaed for Keifer. He did not know anything about the interview between Keifer and Boynton; did not know that Boynton was connected with the McGarrahan bill or any other bill; witness Elder had come to see him before he was subpenaed, and said that Keifer desired to see him; witness said he did not know either Boynton or Keifer, and refused to go to see Keifer.

Gen. Boynton was recalled, and related the story of the press gallery trouble. He said that the trouble between Gen. Keifer and himself had dated from that time. He reiterated the statement that Keifer was in his office on the night of March 1, and detailed the conversation that took place on that occasion. Adjourned.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Eastern Oregon.

The latest advices from Baker City give no encouraging news from the parties in pursuit of the cattle thieves who escaped from the jail at that place on the 25th.

Work has been resumed on the railroad at Hilgard with a large force. All the white labor obtainable has been put to work, and several gangs of Chinamen, it is said, will soon be added to the force.

Mountain Sentinel: Should we experience a cold spell of weather now without a rather heavy fall of snow, fall-sown wheat and fruit will in all probability be a total failure this year, as the ground, in this valley at least, is entirely bare, and has been all winter, with the exception of slight flurries of snow now and then, and the continued summer-like weather has drawn what little frost there was. Several farmers are making calculations of resowing, and think if they escape the task it will be because Grand Ronde valley has been overlooked again.

A correspondent writing from Helix, Umatilla county, to the East Oregonian, gives the following account of a fatal accident: Saturday afternoon at the farm of S. L. Burrell, three miles southeast of here, an accident occurred which shocked this entire community. Mr. R. W. Leopold was engaged in digging a well for Mr. Burrell, and had sunk it to a depth of ninety feet. The windlass was worked by a son of Mr. Leopold's and a young man by the name of Stillwell. They asked him to come up to dinner; he said he was in no hurry for dinner, and filled the box, which is a large one, with dirt, and when it was within a few feet of the surface the windlass broke at one journal and the box and windlass were precipitated to the bottom, killing Mr. Leopold instantly. Mr. Stillwell clung to the crank at the unbroken end until the box had descended a considerable distance by the rope unwinding. The crank severely injured his hand, and he was very nearly drawn into the well. It seems that Mr. Leopold dodged the box and the windlass struck him over the temple, as he was found lying on the box and the windlass on him, and the only mark of injury on his person was a deep cut over the temple, extending down near the eye, and indicating that he was looking up. Mr. Leopold was a hard working citizen, and his family have the heartfelt sympathy of all in their great loss.

Western Oregon.

James Compton president of the new canning company at Tillamook, has shown the editor of the Astorian a specimen of coal, the outcroppings of a vein on the Nehalem, some twelve miles from the mouth. The coal compares favorably with specimens from different parts of the country and is said to exist in paying quantities. A company, called "The Tillamook Head Coal Company," has been organized and the coal measures will be prospected this season.

Washington Territory.

There are now fourteen prisoners confined in the King county jail.

The name of the postoffice at Rock Creek has been changed to Fruitland.

The business men of Cheney have subscribed $10,000 towards a transportation company to the mines.

C. B. Bagley of Olympia has disposed of all his interest in the Puget Sound Courier to Messrs. Dunham and Roberts, who will hereafter conduct that paper.

In a saloon row at Heron Siding last Saturday, between two unknown men, one drew his revolver to shoot the other, but missed him and shot the bartender through the leg at the knee.

Workmen who were engaged in digging a well in the northern part of Seattle, ran into a lot of fir bark at a depth of eighteen feet. The pieces alone remained, the tree which they encased having long ago mingled with the surrounding earth.

The steamer Zephyr during the fog on Saturday last, ran ashore in the Narrows and was compelled to remain there until the tide rose and floated her off. No damage to the steamer is reported, and she lost only about five hours by the accident.

F. H. Terry, the young man who accidentally shot himself through the knee-cap while driving into Olympia last December, has been operated upon. Part of the knee cap was removed, and hopes are now entertained that Terry will be able to walk about again in a few weeks.

Cougars are making havoc among the sheep in the Black river section, about a dozen head having been killed within a few days past on the farm of Mr. Thomas Rutledge. The theory is that the late severe winter has driven the cougars down from the mountainous districts in search of food.

An exchange says: Malignant scarlet fever was carried from Fort Klamath, Oregon, to Walla Walla, through means of a letter written to Lieutenant Edwards by a brother officer located at the former place. Such cases are fortunately rare, but in the one referred to several persons died.

Quin-a-mo-se, an influential chief of the Coeur d'Alene Indians, last week perfected the title to his 160 acres of land, located between Spokane Falls and Fort Coeur d'Alene. He was born on the land and has made it his residence for the past seventy years, fully securing the land under the homestead act. A final proof of similar character probably never took place in the United States.

A few days ago 200 head of sheep belonging to James Woodley, near Union flat, were drowned. The sheep were on a raised piece of ground in the flat and the water surrounded them. As the water continued to rise an effort was made to get the sheep off, and although a number succeeded in reaching a place of safety some 200 head were drowned. Mr. Woodley suffered a similar loss last year.

A ledge of iron ore has been discovered on the farm of John Macready, about two miles southeast of Tacoma. Macready was digging a well, and the ledge was encountered at a depth of fifteen feet from the surface. Nothing definite can be said as to the extent of the ledge, as no effort was made to bore through it. The specimen brought to Tacoma was seen by several old miners, who pronounced it good iron ore, with a probable mixture of copper.

A Dayton exchange says: The recent heavy snow was all that saved the fall sown wheat of this vicinity from being destroyed by the extreme cold which prevailed for two weeks. At present the outlook for good crops next year is good, and Columbia county's quota of wheat in 1884 will be larger than ever before. The ground has absorbed nearly all of the moisture which has fallen this winter, and is in fine condition. An early spring is all that is desired by the farmers.

The bar at the entrance of Shoalwater bay is sadly in need of an adequate buoy system and should be followed up over the entire bay. There is much dissatisfaction among tug men and others who are compelled to go in and out frequently with the manner in which the buoys are laid. The outside buoy is three miles out of the way, and it would not be surprising for a stranger coming in, following the course of such buoy, to meet a similar fate as the Lamerlaw.

On Tuesday there was an accident at Nicklin's sawmill at Seatco. John Shields, the head sawyer, was cleaning the gum out of the lower box of the bull wheel shaft while the wheel was in motion. The cogs caught his coat sleeve and drew his right hand and forearm into the wheel, crushing his hand and arm. Surgeons were summoned and dressed the wounds. It was found necessary to amputate the fourth finger at the hand. The doctors are fearful that they will have to take off his hand to save the arm.

Monday afternoon a barrel factory and dry house in Puyallup valley was destroyed by fire. The fire originated from some defect in the heating apparatus and the flames soon spread, and in a few minutes the structure was burned to the ground. A complete system of waterworks is connected with the factory, but owing to some defect in the hose, the 150-foot head of water was entirely useless. A successful effort was made to prevent the flames from spreading to the adjacent buildings. The dry house, which was completely destroyed, was a large two-story building 50x150 feet and was valued at about $1800, upon which there was no insurance. The building was owned by Willis Bratman, A. O. Matthews, W. J. Bowman and Ira Pearse. The dry house will be reconstructed at once in such a manner as to be used for drying hops as well as barrel material. The fire will not cause operations to be suspended.

GENERAL NEWS.

Interesting Political Information from Eastern States.

MACKAY AND HIS GREAT CABLE SCHEME.

O. R. & N. Shares Suffer a Heavy Decline in Wall Street—Manitoba Railway Convention—Union Pacific Meeting.

NEW YORK, March 5.—[Special.]—Times' Boston: The latest report about Butler's plans is that Butler republicans in this state are talking of having a national independent republican convention, to nominate their leader for the presidency. The independent convention, if one is held, will, according to the programme, be held in Boston. If Butler does not run for president, Butler men say, he will surely run again for governor.

GENERAL GRANT'S HEALTH.

NEW YORK, March 5.—[Special.]—General Grant has so far recovered from his recent accident as to be able to start for Fortress Monroe this week. His party will remain at Old Point Comfort for a week, and probably longer, if the change of climate proves of any advantage to Grant.

Connecticut Prohibitionists.

HARTFORD, March 4.—The prohibition state convention to-day made the following nominations: For governor, Elisha H. Palmer; lieutenant governor, Franklin H. Sagedo; secretary of state, Aaron Morehouse; treasurer, Edmund Tuttle; comptroller, Calvin S. Harrington. Delegates to the national convention were also appointed. Resolutions were adopted demanding that the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors be prohibited by law and by constitutional amendment; in favor of the nomination of independent tickets in all local, state and national elections; denouncing the dominant political parties for their subserviency to the saloon interests, as exhibited in the repealing of prohibition laws and the enacting of license laws, and in their refusal to submit a constitutional amendment to the people; also, inviting all members of either political party who believe in prohibition to abandon their parties and unite with the prohibition party. The city is alive with excitement this afternoon.

Trouble Between Politicians.

HARTFORD, March 5.—Ex-Judge D. C. Birdsall, active in Connecticut democratic politics, requested a private interview with Governor Waller. After being in the governor's private room a few minutes Governor Waller called his secretary and requested him to eject Judge Birdsall, and the secretary showed him the door. Governor Waller says Birdsall threatened him with publication of scurrilous articles in his own paper, a democratic daily of this city, and in a republican newspaper. In revenge for this Governor Waller appointed State Senator Hyatt, an enemy of Birdsall's, to the bank commissionership. Judge Birdsall says the trouble arose from another cause.

Place and Date Selected.

NEW YORK, March 4.—The republican state committee have decided to hold the state convention at Utica on April 23.

The call says: Citizens are invited to co-operate in electing delegates to the convention who are in favor of elevating and dignifying American labor, protecting and extending home industries, without discrimination in favor of any class or interest; giving free popular education to the masses, securing free suffrage and the honest counting of ballots, and effectually protecting all human rights in every section of our common country, and who are willing to support the nominees of the national republican convention.

Damage from High Water.

LITTLE ROCK, March 5.—Gazette's Arkansas City special: The river rose two inches in twenty-four hours, and, although reported on a stand at Helena, we anticipate several inches more here. False floors have been put in all houses. The water is now two feet over the new levee. Engineers estimate their loss at 25,000 yards. Many people who failed to remove their stock to high ground lose largely in this respect. During the high winds of the past few days, great anxiety was felt for the safety of houses, and many families moved out, but no casualties are reported.

Iowa Republican Convention.

DES MOINES, March 5.—A call for a republican state convention, to be held at Des Moines, April 30, was issued to-day. The call says districts have option to elect delegates by district convention or by district subdivision at the state convention, and recommends the latter plan, in order that the state convention may be more largely attended and so get a fuller party convention for conference and counsel. The state convention will be composed of 917 delegates.

Mackay Says all is Serene.

NEW YORK, March 5.—[Special.]—The Times interviewed Mackay on a dispatch from London of yesterday that said that other cable stocks were advancing on reports of a disagreement among the projectors of the Mackay-Bennett cable. "It is all bosh," said Mackay. "There is no disagreement or trouble whatever, and the project is being carried out as planned. The details have all been published."

Suit Instituted.

NEW YORK, March 5.—William P. Brown has brought an action against the Mutual Trust Company to compel it to account for $17,000 derived from the sale of seats in the American Mining Stock Exchange, it being provided that the sum should be held in trust for seat holders, after being invested in United States securities. Plaintiff claims this was not done, but that the company appropriated the money.

Strike in the Pullman Car Shops.

CHICAGO, March 5.—A number of workmen employed in the freight car construction shops of the Pullman Car Company, at Pullman, Illinois, have quit work. The workmen declare that their wages have been reduced from $1.50 to $1.30 a day. The strikers place their number at 200, while officials of the company say that not to exceed fifty have stopped.

College Indignation Meeting.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 5.—At an indignation mass meeting, held last night, almost the entire Princeton college was present. A resolution that the trustees investigate the charges against the faculty was unanimously adopted. The faculty is accused of keeping spies, peeping rooms, etc.

Makes an Assignment.

CLEVELAND, March 5.—Thomas R. Reeve, proprietor of the Novelty company works, which have been idle most of the time lately, has assigned. Liabilities, $50,000; assets, twice that amount. The assignment was precipitated by a lack of ready money to meet obligations.

A Mayor's Conduct to be Investigated.

ANNAPOLIS, March 5.—The senate has appointed a committee to inquire into charges that Mayor Latrobe has been guilty of false and fraudulent conduct in connection with his election to the office of mayor, and in the disposition of patronage of the office.

RAILROAD NOTES.

MANITOBA RAILWAY CONVENTION.

ST. PAUL, March 5.—An associated press Winnipeg special says: The Emerson Hudson Bay railroad convention met yesterday. There were present a great number of citizens and farmers of Manitoba and Dakota. The meeting was very enthusiastic. Speeches were made by Messrs. Fairbanks, Senator Stevenson of Crookston, and Quinby, representing the Fargo chamber of commerce. All endorsed the scheme and favored the road being built and controlled by the Manitoba legislature. The American delegates showed that a large amount of traffic would be given from the Red river valley. Senator Stevenson predicted that the road, when built, will be one of the most prosperous on earth. He showed the great advantage to settlers of having wheat shipped by the proposed route, as it would be a great saving of cost in freight. The first two resolutions carried, when the convention adjourned.

UNION PACIFIC STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING.

BOSTON, March 4.—Stockholders of the Union Pacific railway held a meeting to-day. An amendment to the by-laws, changing the date of election to the last Wednesday in March of each year, at 10 A. M., at the company's office in Boston, was adopted. The old board of directors was elected, excepting Augustus Schell and Solon Humphrey. Hugh Riddle of Chicago and James A. Rumrill of Springfield, were elected to their places.

FANNY DAVENPORT INTERVIEWED.

CHICAGO, March 5.—In answer to an associated press reporter asking if it was true that Manager Allison desired to secure her to play "Fedora" in Australia, and whether in that event she would appear in San Francisco, Fanny Davenport replied: "I can only say that an offer, in fact several offers, have been made to me to appear in California the coming spring, but I have been obliged to decline to accept eastern engagements. As for Australia, it is a long way off, and requires too much deliberation to give an answer on the spur of the moment."

PAPAL POMP.

Celebration at Rome of the Anniversary of Pope Leo's Coronation.

BALTIMORE, March 5.—The Sun's Rome special says: To-day being the sixth anniversary of the coronation of Pope Leo, the celebration in the Sistine chapel was unprecedentedly magnificent and impressive. His holiness, in grand robes and wearing a tiara, appeared, resplendent in white and gold. He was carried in the coronation chair, supported on the shoulders of four servants, in light purple mediæval livery. Four other servants bore ancient fans of ostrich feathers. The pope looked feeble and aged. He entered the chapel with all the papal pomp and ceremony. The procession along the majestic corridors and salons was headed by a group of the Guard Noble, in semi-mediæval costume. Then came the papal procession proper; the cardinals first, two by two, their crimson trains being held by gentlemen pages, garbed in black velvet, with plumes, and with puffed sleeves terminating with white lace cuffs. After the cardinals came the patriarchs, the archbishops, the bishops and the monsignori, in regular order, two by two, and wearing their purple robes.

LESSER DIGNITARIES.

After these came the deacons, doctors, priests, and monks and friars of all degrees. Not an order, or brotherhood or type of the church's organizations was without representation. After the church dignitaries came members of the diplomatic corps, and their ladies and friends. After these came representatives of the Knights of Malta, the grand master and three commanders of the order, they being lineal descendants of the first valiants known. Following these representatives came the Swiss guard, pontifical gens-d'armes, and such members of foreign armies as received admission. In the tribune, on the right and close to the entrance to the chapel, were relatives and friends of the pope. In the tribune for sovereigns sat Prince Cioscho and General Canola. A screen of rare tapestry fell in front of the lower part. Michael Angelo's painting of the last judgment was close by, and on the left was the papal throne. A group of cardinals sat in a semi-circle around it. The diplomatic corps accredited to the holy see sat in the front rows of the tribune seats, next to the permanent screen which divides the chancel of the chapel from the nave. The other benches were occupied by Roman and foreign ladies, all robed in black and wearing black lace veils on their heads.

THE CEREMONIES IN THE TRIBUNE.

Lay gentlemen wore evening dress, without gloves. The approaches to these benches were controlled by gentlemen representing by their birth and character all the countries of Christendom, except America. The celebration mass was by the dean cardinal. The choir, without accompaniment, rendered mass music of Fazzini, and a benediction especially composed. At the termination of mass the pope, in a clear monotone, intoned a "blessing," the entire congregation kneeling. As his holiness passed out and along the chambers, he continually made the sign of the cross, and blessing the assemblage. After all this the pope held a long audience.

THE STAR ROUTE CASES.

Ex-Attorney General James Before the Springer Committee.

NEW LIGHT THROWN UPON THE TRIALS.

President Garfield's Action in the Matter Honorable and Courageous—He Insisted upon Criminal Suits.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Ex-Postmaster General James and ex-Attorney General MacVeagh were examined to-day by the Springer committee, relative to expenditures by the department of justice, in prosecution of the star-route cases. James said his attention was first specially called to the star-route matters by ex-United States Senator George E. Spencer of Alabama, and other well-informed gentlemen. It was their belief that millions of dollars had been wasted in unnecessary "Star" service, much of which had never been performed, and procured by improper measures. It was also maintained that an honest thorough investigation would render practicable retrenchment without detriment to the service, which could not only make the postoffice department self-sustaining, but would yield a respectable revenue to the treasury. Continuing, James said: "The fact that I entertained such views was more or less well known, and the publicity given them, added to the fact that while postmaster at New York, when asked by Stephen W. Dorsey to certify in my official capacity to a large number of papers connected with the contract office of the postoffice department, I refused to do so, may account for the bitter opposition to my appointment to a cabinet position which developed in certain quarters."

James said he visited Washington March 2 at the request of Whitelaw Reid, when the latter introduced him to Garfield. The latter made him the tender of the postmastergeneralship at that convention, and after his appointment Garfield made a suggestion that there were frauds in the postoffice department, and he desired them to be completely unearthed.

GARFIELD CALLED UPON.

Witness said A. M. Gibson, formerly connected with a New York paper as its Washington correspondent, placed in his hands evidence of the greatest importance. The state of affairs thus revealed was truly appalling. "In the early part of April, fortified with facts and figures laboriously and carefully collated, Woodward and myself called on President Garfield and exhibited a comparative statement of the most corruptly manipulated routes. He displayed great surprise, and wished to know if the figures had been verified by the records. He also added that he had been providentially saved from falling into a trap which had evidently been set for him, and seemed to be contemplating some peril which he had escaped. He asked whether the papers had been shown to the attorney general. I replied, 'No,' when he requested me to call with that official and Mr. Woodward next day. We called next afternoon, and a lengthy conversation ensued. In answer to my suggestion as to whether it would not be wise to institute civil suits for recovery of money obtained through dishonest contracts rather than commence criminal proceedings against the implicated parties he said 'no.'"

GARFIELD INSISTS ON PROSECUTION.

One moment, Mr. President, said the attorney general; consider whether or not the postmaster general is not right before final decision. Remember that these proceedings may strike men in high places; that they may result in changing the republican majority in the United States senate to a democratic majority; that they may affect persons who claim that you are under personal obligations to them for services rendered during the last campaign, and one person in particular, who asserts that without his management you could not have been elected. Look these facts squarely in the face before taking a final stand, for neither the postmaster general nor myself will know friend or foe in this matter."

The president walked across the room, reflected a moment, and said: "No; I have sworn to execute the laws. Go ahead, regardless of whom you hit. I direct you both not only to probe this ulcer to the bottom, but to cut it out."

This closed the conversation. Shortly after the conference above, ex-Senator Dorsey called on me at Washington, and in the presence of Mr. Woodward denounced Brady bitterly, and urged that he be removed. Witness incidentally remarked that in his opinion publication of the reports sent congress by the postmaster general would be detrimental to the public interest.

DORSEY'S EFFORTS TO SHIELD HIMSELF.

Preparations made for investigating the star routes were described by witness at length. "Very soon," said James, "Dorsey began actively to engage in efforts to shield himself, to bring the investigation to naught, to distort the relations of the president with the cabinet and to convince the country that persecution was the primary motive of the department and the administration. The most brazen effrontery and reckless prevarications were freely indulged in, despite the most direct and convincing documentary and oral evidence which abounded on every hand.

On the last Wednesday in June James said that with attorney Cook and Woodward he called on Garfield at the White house, and found Dorsey and Colonel Ingersoll in consultation with him. Cook explained what had been done by Gibson and himself. The president suggested that they were too slow; that they should be more earnest in their work, and that they should have the accused parties indicted and tried. Cook promised that no time should be lost.

Toward the close of August, at a meeting at the house of the attorney general, at which Woodward, Cook and Gibson were present, the question of additional counsel was discussed. The attorney general said he had concluded to retain Brewster, and that he would retain any other person whom James suggested. James asked that George Bliss, Ex-United States attorney for the southern district of New York, be retained. This was done.

A TRIBUTE TO GARFIELD'S MEMORY.

In conclusion witness said: "I desire to say to the committee that I gladly avail myself of the opportunity afforded by their summons to present to them and to the public this statement of the essential facts of my connection with the star-route proceedings. I deem it due to history and in justice to myself, and still more in justice to the late President Garfield. His conduct in the whole affair was honorable and courageous in a high degree, and was inspired by a lofty sense of the duties of his office. If he had taken a lower view of his obligations as chief magistrate and as an honest man, it is my belief he would not have been the victim of the assassin's bullet."

Governor Stewart, member of the committee, said: "Your belief, Mr. James, is that the assassination of Garfield was in consequence of star route matters?"

"I don't say that," replied witness. "I mean, judging from the clamor of the people and the clipping found in the assassin's pocket, that Guiteau's head was turned by these things."

MAC VEAGH'S TESTIMONY.

Ex-Attorney General MacVeagh stated at length concerning the star route frauds, corroborating the testimony of James in the main features. After President Garfield was shot witness considered it undesirable to complicate the star route cases, and he desired to do nothing to complicate the president who would succeed Garfield. He wished his successor to go in as little embarrassed as possible. MacVeagh continuing, said: "I had several conferences with President Arthur as to the general subject of the prosecution of the star route cases, and he expressed a desire that I should remain and continue responsible for the prosecution, first as attorney-general and subsequently as leading counsel for the government; but I felt I could not do so."

MacVeagh will continue his testimony to-morrow.

THE DYNAMITE OUTRAGES.

London Police Discover Clues that will Probably Lead to Important Arrests.

LONDON, March 5.—The police seem to be on the right track to discover the authors of the dynamite outrages. They think they have evidence that will soon lead to their capture. It has been learned that three men landed at Southampton February 20, from a steamer from New York. Two of them were of gentlemanly appearance, and the other was rough and sailor-like. They purchased two portmanteaus, one of which has been identified as that found at Charing Cross station filled with explosives. The other is that found at Victoria station. A portion of an overcoat found in the Charing Cross bag is similar to the garment worn by one of the three men. It is believed three other men, who have not been traced, landed likewise at Southampton, to act in concert with the three whose movements are particularly known, but kept away from them. These three men were first stationed at Southampton about the time the two gentlemen came to London, where one of them directly went to the Waverly hotel. He had with him a valise as heavy as lead. The other man went to the Waverly a few days later.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

After the latter left the hotel two boxes containing small American clocks and the tray of a cash box similar to that in the portmanteau found at Paddington station, were discovered.

The sailor took tickets from Southampton for Bristol, but this is not believed to have been his destination. He had previously written a letter addressed to Limerick. It is supposed six men were concerned in the plot, and divided themselves into three parties on February 2.

A reward is offered for the apprehension of five men, two of whom are described as Americans.

An Irish-American named Burns or Barton, who described himself as an American detective, took lodgings at Bradford February 6. He had two black trunks, and allowed no one to enter his room. At midnight on February 12, he brought with him several strange men and women. On another occasion, some time after this, a hissing sound was heard to proceed from the stranger's room, followed by an explosion. Burns opened the door and exclaimed that nothing was wrong. He disappeared on the 21st. A woman called for his baggage. She said Burns was about to return to New York.

A Warning Letter from the Cœur d'Alene Gold Fields.

GOV. STONEMAN'S PROCLAMATION ISSUED.

Personal Notes from San Francisco—The Flood in Southern California—A Contractor Commits Suicide—Notes.

An Anti-Railroad Editorial.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 5.—[Special.]—To-day's Chronicle says: "The report of the committee on public lands declares that the unearned section of the grant of the California and Oregon should be forfeited for non-compliance with its terms. For 150 miles of road, built to Redding, patents for 1,547,000 acres have already been given. We have no means of knowing how much the road will realize from these lands, but perhaps enough to pay for the road from the initial point to the Oregon line. Henley has explained the motives that caused its extension beyond Redding. It was stopped at that place because the Willamette valley road was in trouble, and was unable to build to the state line, as originally agreed. Work was recommenced because Villard threatened to extend the Willamette valley road to San Francisco, thus giving us legitimate competition with the east, and this had to be stopped at any price. In plain English the Central Pacific stopped the Northern Pacific in an enterprise that would have been of great benefit to California, and now demands that it be magnificently paid for having been a public enemy. It is now evident that the road will have to be built, as Huntington says that whether the lands are given or not they will be simply taking from the people to give to a corporation already rolling in wealth, and greatly overpaid for this very service.

A Warning from the Cœur d'Alene.

[Special.]—The following was published by a morning paper here to-day: A private letter from a gentleman whose interests are all in the section of country referred to says that he has no hesitation in asserting that reports of the richness of gold discoveries in the Cœur d'Alene region are grossly exaggerated, and that interested persons are purposely booming the country in order to bring people to it. We quote: "The deeper the snow the richer the claims are reported to be. There has not been a shovelful of dirt thrown into sluices since last November. Of that I am positive. But there is not much use trying to allay the excitement. You would better advise men to go slow, and not rush in until April or May. The country is undoubtedly a good one to prospect in, but nothing has yet been found to justify the sensational accounts sent out. I question if any miner has yet made $2 a day for the whole time he has been there. All the dust we see is in two or three dollar samples, brought to exhibit. Some rich pieces of quartz which I recently saw in Portland, labeled from the Cœur d'Alene mines, came from California, and were evidently cabinet specimens. There is, as I said before, no doubt about there being gold, but the country has not been prospected."

The Governor's Proclamation.

The governor issued a proclamation at Sacramento to-day, calling an extra session of the legislature for the 24th instant. The governor recommends the abolition of the present railroad commission, characterizing it as unsatisfactory in its working; that laws be enacted for the assessment and collection of all taxes due from railroad companies doing business in the state; that when such taxes are not paid the property be sold to satisfy the amount due; that railroad property be subject in all respects similar to property of individuals, and that the constitution be amended fixing a maximum rate for transportation of passengers and freight on all railroad lines in the state.

Shanghaied.

An attempt was made Monday last to shanghai a young German named Kaltenmier, who, through his ignorance of English, was induced to sign papers for a voyage to the Arctic on the whaler Hidalgo. Brunsen, a sailor boarding-house keeper, is charged by the victim with being the person who deceived him. He also states that Brunsen induced him to sign an order for $50 in advance, which amount was appropriated by Brunsen. Friends of the victim, learning of his whereabouts yesterday, obtained a writ of habeas corpus, and brought Kaltenmier ashore. The case will be heard to-day.

A Serious Flood Threatened.

LOS ANGELES, March 5.—It is reported that a heavy cloudburst occurred near San Fernando to-day, and active preparations are being made to prevent damage from the flood which seems probable, from the large amount of water which will come down in the river to-night. People are moving out of their houses. There are strong indications of continued rain. It has been raining the greater part of the day, and the rainfall for the twenty-four hours ending 8:15 P. M. was 1.97 inches. Railroad tracks are washed out badly east of here, and all trains are delayed. It is not expected that the passenger train can get through from Yuma for three or four days.

The Missing Judge Found.

HOLLISTER, Cala., March 5.—Judge Hoffman, whose mysterious disappearance caused no little excitement in this community yesterday, was found this morning in an unconscious condition in a gravel pit near town. There is no doubt but that he was temporarily insane. He is quite rational tonight, but can give no account of his wanderings. His condition is still very low and grave doubts are entertained of his recovery.

A Contractor Commits Suicide.

LOS ANGELES, March 5.—Last night a contractor named E. S. Clifford entered the Magnolia saloon on Commercial street, apparently in a stupefied condition, and fell on the floor. He was taken to his home and soon after died. It is believed he took poison with suicidal intent. He leaves a family. He was a native of Iowa and about 45 years of age.

Decision against Murderers.

SACRAMENTO, March 5.—Ex-Attorney General Hart this afternoon received a dispatch from Washington stating that the United States supreme court has confirmed the decision in the case of the People vs. Hurtado. This destroys the last hope of Hurtado and Eater, and those murderers depending on the "information" point raised.

MONTANA.

OGDEN, March 5.—Wm. A. Wells, a telegraph operator from New York state, was killed by cars running over him at Missoula to-day. He is about 26 years of age, and recently worked at Pocatello, Idaho. Efforts which have been made to find his relatives have been fruitless, as yet.

The new Catholic church at Butte will cost $17,000 and seat 700 people.

A library association for Montana's penitentiary is being formed at Deer Lodge.

A post of the Grand Army of the Republic has been organized at Deer Lodge with a membership of twenty-two.

One hundred and seventy-five pounds of giant powder was used in attempting to blast out the ice gorge below Benton, but without avail.

A Livingston taxidermist has succeeded in securing the head of a genuine moose. The animal from which it was taken was killed up the Yellowstone about forty miles from Miles City, and was one of a band of four or five that were together. These great animals, the largest of the deer species, were never very numerous in this country, and of late have been thought very rare.

The speedy opening to settlement of a large proportion of northern Montana, now embraced within the limits of enormous Indian reservations, is confidently expected. Fort Benton, which is the chief trade center of that region, is enjoying great prosperity. The territory to be released is 200 miles long, east and west, and 120 miles wide, containing 15,000,000 acres, and embraces vast tracts of fine agricultural and grazing lands.

Georgia's new $1,000,000 capitol building at Atlanta will soon be under way of construction, designs having been accepted by the commissioners. It will be Corinthian in style, of Georgia marble or granite, and will be fire-proof.

Mrs. Twist, No. 18 Avenue D, says she has been troubled with worms for more than a year, and that she took one bottle of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., which brought away from her over three hundred worms, big and little. She now believes herself to be entirely free from disease.

Messrs. D. & J. W. Colton, of Winchester, Ind., happened last spring to get some of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge. After selling a few bottles, the demand became so great for it that their stock was soon exhausted. They state that it has produced the best effect wherever used, and is very popular among the people.

Andrew Downing, of Cranburgh township, Venango county, gave his child one teaspoonful of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and she passed 177 worms. Next morning, on repetition of the dose, she passed 113 more.

Jonathan Houghman, of West Union, Park county, Iowa, writes that that he is unable to supply the demand, as the people in his neighborhood say, after a trial of the others, that none is equal to Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge.

THURSDAY MORNING MARCH 6 1884.

"THE STORY OF A NOMINATION"

Articles in the monthly reviews are supposed to treat more fully and accurately the subjects handled than can reasonably be expected of articles in the daily newspapers. Leisure presupposes preparation for writing, and care in arrangement and use of materials, but after all the writers for the reviews sometimes fall into mistakes which writers for the daily papers never would commit. An instance is presented in an article entitled as above, published in the last number of the North American Review. The writer discusses the second nomination of President Lincoln which he attributes to the action of the Union League of America. This, without doubt, was a powerful organization, but it certainly did not play the part in the second nomination of Lincoln that the Review writer would lead his readers to believe. According to this writer (Mr W O Howard) there was a stormy session of the grand council of the league in 1863 and the sentiment was against the renomination of Mr Lincoln. That he desired the nomination he did not deny. He had to vindicate his policy and finish the mighty work he had begun. But the great man did not ask the honor nor did he directly nor indirectly seek it. The republican national convention was to meet in Baltimore in 1864, June 8. The national grand council of the Union League had resolved to meet June 7 1864 the day before the convention and take action what it should do. Many members of the council, in fact according to Mr Howard, at least two-thirds were delegates to the convention. At the beginning of the session of the council the feeling was decidedly against Mr Lincoln, hardly a voice was raised in his defense, and passion ran high. Finally a lull came in the storm and "Jim" Lane of Kansas arose to speak for Lincoln. His speech was a masterpiece because it turned the council and brought it to the support of Mr. Lincoln. He closed by saying

> We shall come together to be watched, in breathless listening by all this country—by all the civilized world—and if we at all seem to waver as to our set purpose, we destroy hope and if we permit private feeling, as to-night to break forth into discussion we discuss defeat and if we nominate any other man than Abraham Lincoln we nominate ruin!

Then, says Mr Howard

> The senator sat down but no man arose to reply. His speech had not been a very long one but it had been enough to accomplish all he had proposed for it. The resolution approving the administration was adopted with but few dissenting voices many not voting. Another vote declared the voice of the union league to be in favor of President Lincoln's re-election, and the greatest political peril then threatening the United States had disappeared. When the national convention of the republican party attained an organized condition on the next day, Abraham Lincoln was nominated for president on the first ballot. The twenty two votes of Missouri were first given for General Grant but were immediately changed to Mr Lincoln and the voice of the convention for him was declared to be unanimous. Thirty days later it would have been a hard task to find a man who would confess to having entertained a doubt as to that result but then the delegates to the grand council were not in a position to make remarks or to answer questions.

This sounds very well chiefly because it has an air of romance. That is, it purports to be a revelation of a highly important event, never made before. But while it need not be doubted that this scene in the Union League actually took place and that it had an effect upon the national republican convention nevertheless the league played but a subordinate part in the re-nomination of Mr Lincoln. That result was brought about chiefly through the management of certain very able politicians who had taken steps to bring their own influence to the support of Mr Lincoln's popularity. For, though Mr Lincoln had a wide popularity, there was a very powerful and very bitter opposition to him, which for a time threatened his position and made it appear almost certain that the convention even if he had a majority in it could not safely nominate him. A formidable organization had nominated Ben Wade for president and Winter Davis for vice president and it looked as if the effort to push Mr Lincoln would result in division and overthrow of the party.

While Mr Lincoln was in this perplexity Simon Cameron called on him one day, and the conversation turned to the election then only about seven months distant. Lincoln expressed a doubt whether the convention would be in his favor. Cameron assured him that by proper management there would be no difficulty. He reminded Mr Lincoln how he (Cameron) had aided General Jackson's second nomination by having him endorsed by the Pennsylvania legislature. The same thing could be done for Mr Lincoln. Lincoln eagerly grasped the idea and thanked Cameron. In a few days Cameron was in Harrisburg and had a resolution passed by the legislature indorsing Mr Lincoln and calling for his renomination. Other states followed the example of Pennsylvania and so when the convention at Baltimore met Mr Lincoln was backed by the people and the states. All this was due chiefly to the methods which Cameron had set on foot. He did not trouble himself about the Union leagues, but asked the representatives of the people to stand by the great president. It was not "Jim" Lane's masterly speech in a secret council which made Lincoln president the second time, but the resolution which Cameron had induced the Pennsylvania legislature to pass. This set the ball in motion and Lincoln would have been renominated had there been no Union league.

Cameron also played a very important part in the first nomination of Mr Lincoln though Greeley also had much to do with bringing it about. The latter had resigned as junior partner of the firm of Seward Weed & Greeley, in his famous letter of June 1860. The action of Greeley at Chicago was not prompted by personal vindictiveness, but because he thought Seward would be unequal to the task that events would place upon his shoulders. And now says an intelligent critic of the life of Thurlow Weed "No intelligent man who is familiar with the history of the negotiations between the confederate commissioners and the republican cabinet during the early weeks of Mr Lincoln's administration and who carefully considers the attitude of the secretary of state, will refuse to concur with Mr Greeley in congratulating the defenders of the Union that Mr Seward was not nominated at Chicago." But Mr Greeley could not have won alone. He weakened Seward by casting doubts upon his fitness for the position. He did enough to convince the delegates at Chicago that Seward was not the man for the hour. Now came the important crisis. Pennsylvania was for Cameron, but at the right time the influence of the keystone state was thrown to Lincoln. This decided the contest. Greeley weakened Seward. The votes of Cameron nominated Lincoln. All this is history. There is no sentiment about it. The records show it. Cameron has often been censured as a politician of bad methods, but he certainly rendered his country a service in what he did to make Lincoln president both in 1860 and in 1864.

Among the provisions of Kentucky's out of date constitution, to amend which all efforts thus far have proved unavailing, are the following: "The right of property is before and higher than any constitutional sanction, and the right of the owner of a slave to such slave and its increase is the same and as inviolable as the right of the owner of any property whatever." Another clause limits the voters to "free white male citizens of twenty-one years of age." Another makes every emancipated slave remaining in the state guilty of felony. Another declares that no slave shall be emancipated without full compensation to the owner and on condition that such freedman shall remove from the state.

The public judgment is that when a seven mill school tax is asked where, but for the high school a three and a half mill tax would suffice, the high school ought to "go."

THE ENFORCEMENT OF LAW

A law and order league was organized in Massachusetts in 1882 to aid in enforcing existing laws for the regulation of the liquor traffic. There are now thirty four branch leagues in connection with the central organization. Its methods are simple and they vary with circumstances, the main purpose being to set over against the wealthy and unscrupulous interests which defy and violate the laws a more powerful and wholly unselfish interest which demands their enforcement. The state now has a local option law which becomes in any town where the majority vote for it just the strongest prohibitory statute ever passed. As it stands it does not need a majority to make it the most restrictive license law. But in either case is it worth a farthing if the citizens neglect their duty of seeing it enforced? At a meeting of the league recently held in Tremont temple Boston accounts were given of the work done by branch leagues in various towns under the conditions of license and also under those of no license, and where the public sentiment was behind it the work in either case was very effective. Just so far as there is no such support in public sentiment, the work lags and the first thing to be done in that case is to create such a sentiment. The obstacles always in the way are that unless they feel that the people are behind them, town or city officials take no pains to really enforce the law. One speaker said they will violate their oaths before they will do it but a small number of officers can enforce it provided respectable citizens will stand behind them and sustain them.

But the worst feature of the case in Massachusetts as in other states, is the constant failure of the legal machinery. There is no other class of offenses in which it is so difficult to get evidence that will stand in court and in which convictions are so likely to be overruled on appeals. In one town thirty convictions were obtained for violation of the terms of licenses, but they were all thrown out by the higher courts. Several of the speakers deprecated the necessity of such an organization as this league. Its existence is felt to be in one sense, a humiliation. But the necessity for it is partly due to the fact that many prohibitionists make no effort to sustain restrictive laws. They do not believe in either the efficiency or rightfulness of a license law. It is a matter of conscience with them and, of course, their conscientiousness is to be respected. But it is precisely this failure of a large class of people to give existing laws an earnest support that causes the supineness of many city governments. As James Freeman Clarke said: "A hindrance to all important reformations has been in differences of opinion among the reformers as to methods, or as to matters subsidiary to the main purpose. Jealousies and irreconcilable pretensions have followed whereby the general movement has been weakened. Christianity itself was no exception. In the early days there were those who were of the party of Paul, others of the party of Apollos others of Cephas and still others who claimed that they only were of Christ excluding all the rest. The spread of Protestantism over Europe which seemed at one time probable was checked by dissensions and persecutions arising among the Protestants which produced a reaction in favor of Catholicism." He urged, accordingly the importance to the temperance reformation of finding some common ground upon which all could co-operate. In a republican government where the people execute as well as make the laws the executive machinery will be strong or weak in proportion to the strength of public opinion which the laws formulate. Under any form of despotism the case is different. There the executive officers are not the agents of the people, police officers are not loafers and the whole machinery is distinct and separate from the people. The executive machinery of a popular government must in the nature of the case always be its weakest part intrinsically, and the enforcement of law must depend more than in any other government upon the amount of public opinion that is embodied in the laws. Nothing is made more plain than this by the history of liquor legislation in this country.

There promises to be a complicated canvass in Alabama. "The Alabama Industrial League" is organizing in opposition to the Revenue Reformers and in the paper which it is circulating for signatures is the following declaration: "We believe it to be the first duty of every true Alabamian to lend his influence to the perpetuation of a policy (protection) which bears within it the germs of an enduring prosperity." The Birmingham Age endorses this fully, and says that it is of vital importance to elect congressmen who are in favor of a protective system. The Selma (Alabama) Times regrets that the tariff issue should have taken this shape and fears that there will be a division on that issue among the white democrats of Alabama.

It appears from the testimony taken by an investigating committee of the state legislature that Mayor Edson of New York City was elected on the contract plan. He made a trade with John Kelly, at a private conclave of Tammany politicians at Kelly's house to reappoint Sidney P Nichols police commissioner, John J Gorman fire commissioner and Thomas S Brennan charity commissioner and to give other patronage to Tammany hall as a condition of his nomination. After his election he faithfully discharged all these obligations. But in the investigation the republicans appear as badly as the democrats. One of the witnesses, a republican alderman, told an interesting story about the way the republican place-hunters made deals with John Kelly.

A claim which rivals Mark Twain's famous beef claim is before the house. It goes back a trifle of seventy-two years being for the value of 148 hogsheads of tobacco burned by the British troops in a Maryland warehouse when they were on their march to attack the national capital during the last war with England, and it has been pending all the three score and ten years since. Committees of both branches have considered it time and again, reports favorable and unfavorable have been made upon it, but it has never been paid and the grandchild of the original claimant now brings it before congress once more. His grandson will be mighty lucky if he gets the claim allowed. But it is an interesting heirloom, if not a valuable one.

The Rutland, Vt Herald says that "Senator Edmunds' conduct in the senate is that of a statesman who does not know that his name has ever been mentioned for the presidency. No politician would have dared to array the influence of the Union Pacific, the Central Pacific and the Western Union all against him within four months of the Chicago convention. Would Blaine have done it? No. Would Sherman? No. The conduct of Mr Edmunds was never so statesmanlike as at present, he is the father of all these important bills before the senate and yet not one of these bills would have been presented by an artful politician."

The discovery by the German sanitary commission of microscopic germs of cholera in India similar to those found in the victims of the Egyptian plague settles the point, which had been previously disputed, that the latter was of the real Asiatic type. The next point is as to whether these germs can by the system of attenuation and transplantation pursued by Pasteur and Frieron in other infectious diseases, be made the means of mitigating the scourge. If this can be done science will have secured another great victory over the destructive powers of nature.

The impression seems to be growing in New York and Washington that Blaine is playing a waiting game, and that it may win. Its success is based on the probable slaughter of other candidates by each other. And yet we half suspect that the "plumed knight", though professing to be so indifferent, would not lose the opportunity of setting up a delegate here and there that he could depend on.

THE BALANCE OF PARTIES

The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald calls attention to the curious fact that the solid south is exactly matched by the solid north, six sure states in each section having the same number of electoral votes. The south is sure to cast 153 electoral votes for the democratic candidates, and the north the same number for the republican candidates. There are six debatable or doubtful states—California with 8 votes, Indiana with 15, Nevada with 3, New Jersey with 9, New York with 36 and Ohio with 23. Of these so called uncertain states casting 93 electoral votes which seem to stand between the solid north and the solid south California, Nevada and New Jersey were carried by the democrats in 1880, Indiana, New York and Ohio went republican in that year. New York and Indiana were carried by the democrats in 1876. Ohio has gone republican at all recent presidential elections and the democrats do not expect to carry it next fall. Notwithstanding the claims of both parties New York remains the important state for both and it is probable that neither convention will venture to nominate a candidate who would meet with a factious opposition in his own party in that state. The recent conference of independent republicans shows that President Arthur has no chance for carrying New York but that Edmunds and Lincoln would receive their earnest support. These gentlemen said in brief that they did not intend to accept the nomination of a weak man, a spoilsman, a factionist nor to share in discreditable campaign work. The republican majority in 1880 was less than 7000 votes in New York. In the present situation of the parties it is easier for the republicans than for the democrats to poll their entire vote in this important state.

Because THE OREGONIAN has stated that the Northern Pacific has not now nor is likely soon to get the money to build the Cascade division and because it has stated that fabricated reports concerning the action of the board of directors have been telegraphed from New York and Philadelphia to bolster up land speculation on this side the Tacoma Ledger says: "THE OREGONIAN is doing all it safely can to injure the credit of the Northern Pacific railroad company and to damage the city of Tacoma. It is an enemy of that company and of this city." A word here to our esteemed contemporary. THE OREGONIAN believes that the people who read it want strictly accurate and truthful reports. It believes it, moreover, to be its duty and to be good journalism, besides, to give such reports. When it knows that fabricated and therefore wholly incorrect statements have been put in circulation and that its own columns, through the agency of the press reports, were used for the purpose it conceives it to be its duty to say so. Yet it does not say these things through the smallest particle of enmity to the Northern Pacific or to Tacoma, but solely in the interest of truth. Its readers have a right to look in its columns for authentic information and they know by long experience that it never presents a statement on its own authority, or vouches for any statement unless it be substantially correct. None of its readers it hopes will regard it as an enemy because it pursues this habit. At all events it will continue to assume that they desire correct information.

In illustrating the subject of international copyright recently Rev Joseph Cook revived the old story that when Charles Dickens was in this country he was invited to dine with one of the Harpers, and while in the house he took a little boy on his knee and patted him saying: "You are a fine looking fellow and I don't doubt you are a good boy but you are a son of one of the greatest pirates on earth." This story was started about twenty five years ago and has gone the rounds of the press at intervals ever since but as a matter of fact there is not one single word of truth in it, and its falsity has been exposed a dozen times. Charles Dickens through a long series of years received large sums of money from the Harpers and in its treatment of other English authors the American publishing firm has been more generous.

A correspondent of the New York Times reports that in Leavenworth, Kansas, a city of about 11,000 people there are to-day not less than 149 saloons in which intoxicating liquors are openly sold and these saloons are virtually licensed by the city at the rate of $10 a month for each dealer. The fee is imposed in the shape of a monthly fine for violation of the law, dealers, city authorities and courts uniting thus to evade the law and public sentiment sustaining this demoralizing policy. Prohibition must have been put into the state constitution to stay. It appears not to be in the saloons.

The present aspect of the silver question is attracting the attention of the press generally. The Boston Journal fears that the warning of the treasury department given to the Clearing House Association will not be heeded by congress. The Philadelphia Press points out that a suspension of gold payments in favor of silver would strike off at least 10 per cent from the purchasing power of every salary, of every weekly wage, of every savings bank deposit and every bond.

The constitution of Montana just completed by the constitutional convention among other things prohibits railroads from discriminating between towns and individuals, forbids any state official or legislator or member of his family receiving a railway pass, gives the ballot to women on school matters as well as the right to hold school offices and prohibits the employment of children under 14.

Libel suits have been instituted at Uniontown Pa against certain newspapers by members of the jury that acquitted Dukes. On this shameful acquittal the newspapers commented with just severity, and the jurors now attempt to "get even." They are taking an excellent way to perpetuate the memory of their own misconduct.

SURGEONS BEYOND THE SURGEON'S SKILL.—The operation of taking up and ligating the severed artery in the wrist of William Rose was performed yesterday afternoon by Drs. Wheeler McKenzie and [illegible]. The patient, however is in a very critical condition from excessive loss of blood. Still Dr [illegible] thought he stood a much better chance of recovery than before the operation was performed. [illegible] was administered to the patient about [illegible] o'clock and an examination of the [illegible] was begun. While this was going on the [illegible] which had formed suddenly burst and a [illegible] of the muscular tissues sent a jet of bright arterial blood several feet high in [illegible]. This was stopped immediately by compression and the operation of laying bare the injured artery was begun. The large subclavian artery was [illegible] to have been punctured but several of its smaller branches were seen to be severed completely, and from these it was supposed that the [illegible] was formed. These were taken up and a [illegible] was formed which was then securely [illegible]. The patient knew what had been done [illegible] better to think that there were [illegible] chances for his recovery. Just before the operation he had received a telegram from [illegible] which said he would come at once and [illegible] to making his suffering more easy [illegible]. In speaking of the family his thoughts ran [illegible] his mother and tears came into his eyes [illegible] down over his pallid cheeks. Soon after [illegible] into a quiet sleep, which seemed to refresh [illegible]. Between 10 and 11 o'clock P. M. it seemed [illegible] of the surgeons in the afternoon [illegible] the wound began bleeding [illegible] copiously. Dr Wheeler was once [illegible] and succeeded in again stopping the [illegible] could not now say when it would [illegible]. Since this last bleeding it seems [illegible] that the wound is more deep and dangerous than was thought, even after the examination [illegible]. Probably it is beyond the reach of [illegible]. The chances of Rose's recovery [illegible] than one to one hundred

FAIR FOR MONEY.—At the regular [illegible] meeting of the Franklin building and loan [illegible], held at its office last evening there was [illegible] to the highest bidder $3100 of the [illegible]. Bidding was spirited and no [illegible] experienced in finding members who [illegible], although the prices paid for the [illegible] not so great as have been in the past [illegible] $4600 was loaned at forty [illegible] in advance, $1000 for thirty five [illegible] in advance and $800 for thirty [illegible] in advance. Outside of the meet [illegible] discussion among the members [illegible] plan of starting a savings bank [illegible] with the other business of the association. This plan has met with much decided opposition from many of the most prominent members [illegible] that it can ever be indorsed [illegible] majority of the stockholders. The [illegible], probably, that those who are sanguine of the success of the savings bank scheme will [illegible] a smaller corporation—one without any business connection with the building association—to [illegible] banking business.

DEAD BY PARALYSIS.—The citizens of [illegible] were greatly shocked yesterday to learn of the [illegible] and unexpected death at his residence in that [illegible] of Hon. George A. Edes well and favorably [illegible] throughout the state. He was in attendance [illegible] at the city council on the evening previous, and while seated in his accustomed place was [illegible] with a severe paralytic stroke and stricken [illegible] floor. A cab was at once called and he was [illegible] home and a physician summoned. He [illegible] through the night but passed away [illegible] o'clock yesterday morning. Mr Edes has [illegible] many offices of public trust the duties of [illegible] has always discharged with fidelity and ability [illegible], friend and neighbor he was highly esteemed and respected by all with whom he came in [illegible]. His counsel and advice was sought in many [illegible] of public interest, and he has for many years [illegible] identified with the best interests of [illegible] city. He was a prominent member of the [illegible] and Odd Fellows orders ranking as past [illegible] in the former fraternity and will probably [illegible] by them. He leaves a wife son and [illegible] to mourn his loss

[illegible] MECHANICAL CONTRIVANCE.—The house [illegible] company No 1 has always been an attraction to strangers on account of the mechanical [illegible] for the horses, opening doors supporting the collars, etc. A new and very ingenious device has lately been added to the other attractions. It consists of automatic gates for the horses, invented by William H McMillan the [illegible] of the company. Two neat gates are [illegible] the head of each stall which vanish as if [illegible] when an alarm is struck on the gong. The [illegible] of a novel structure being hinged at every [illegible] and connected by cords to an admirable contrivance, by which they are folded out of sight in [illegible] as the hammer rises to strike an alarm. [illegible] take the place of a chain in keeping the horse [illegible] stall, and are much better. A patent has been [illegible]

He was 50 years old, and has a wife and two [illegible] living in Albina. [illegible] RESIGNED.—John Wilson one of [illegible] directors of the Portland public schools [illegible] his intention of resigning deeming the [illegible] at the recent school meeting equivocal [illegible] to do so. Mr Wilson has already notified [illegible] school clerk and Mr Wadhams one of his [illegible] of his intention, and has asked that a [illegible] meeting of the board be called at once. Mr [illegible] however is confined to his house at the [illegible] by illness, and no date has yet been [illegible] for a meeting. THE CONGREGATIONAL CREED

Dr. Marvin Insists on Receiving Members Without Signing It.

HE IS SUSTAINED BY A LARGE MAJORITY

His Congregation by a Vote of [illegible] to 1[illegible] Permit Him to Withdraw His Resignation on His Own Terms

Last night a meeting of the First Congregational church was held to hear the decision of their pastor, the Rev Frederic R Marvin on the question of withdrawing his resignation

The meeting was called to order by Mr Marvin who said that the first thing in order was the election of a chairman On motion J P O Lownsdale was called to the chair He stated that the meeting had been called to receive and consider the proposition of their pastor stating the terms on which he would consent to withdraw his resignation

By request prayer was offered by James Steel, who besought that though their minds might differ their hearts might be right and asked for guidance from above for the deliberations of the meeting

Mr Marvin said he had reduced to writing what he had to say so that there might be no dispute about it in the future He then read the following proposition

In the first place I desire to thank you for the enthusiastic and almost unanimous vote given me two weeks ago to-night requesting me to reconsider my resignation It was no more than I expected for notwithstanding all which has been said to the contrary, I felt certain I had the sympathy and support of a large number of the church However it would not be wise for me to remain with you as your pastor unless we are all entirely agreed to work together harmoniously and to that end I desire to submit to you this proposition That I be authorized to continue my usual mode of receiving persons into the church—that is by letter from any Christian church or on profession of faith in Jesus Christ as a personal Savior from the power of sin together with an expressed desire to lead a life of prayer and Christian service

I have no desire to dictate with regard to the manual but I will suggest three methods either of which would be acceptable to me The first is to insert the creed commonly known as the apostles' creed; the second, the creed in Roy's manual; the third that statement of belief which I have myself prepared and which I will read Either of these to be inserted in the manual as an expression of the general belief of the church but not to be used as a test of church membership but that persons shall be admitted to the church on profession of their faith in Jesus Christ as a Savior from sin and their expressed desire to lead a life of prayer and Christian service.

This is the statement of belief which the pastor prepared for the manual

We the members of the First Congregational church of Portland O hereby covenant to live together as a church of the Lord Jesus Christ on the following platform of doctrine and polity

DOCTRINE

We recognize one Heavenly Father and to whom we owe the willing service of love faith and obedience We receive Jesus the Christ as our friend and Savior and the bible containing the word of God as a complete guide in all spiritual matters And it is our purpose to lead with the aid of the holy spirit, lives of prayer and Christian service in the name of the great head of the church to whom be glory and honor now and forever Amen

POLITY

We believe in the independence of the local church the equality of all its members and in the fellowship of the churches We believe our Savior provided a way in which all his disciples should settle whatever disputes may arise among them Matt xviii 15-17

We do therefore as a body of believers refuse to recognize the authority or supervision of any ecclesiastical court. And we do receive the Lord Jesus Christ only as the true head of the church

In conclusion he said What my method of receiving members is you know For the two years I have been with you I have always done so The bible I take to be a test of church membership the bible I believe in the bible I think it wrong to tamper with I would compel subscription to the bible I think it contains the word of God Creeds are human The one condition I make the meeting has heard

S B Morse moved that Mr Marvin's letter and condition be accepted

The chairman announced that the subject was now open for discussion

The question was called

H H Northup said We ought not to use undue haste in this matter All matters pertaining to creeds and to the life to come will bear thought and delay The only condition I would stand to be imposed is that Mr Marvin be allowed to receive me as he has been doing

Mr Marvin said that the part of his communication in regard to the creed was inseparable from the condition mentioned

Mr Northup—Then of course a change of creed is involved in the method of taking members

Mr Marvin—You can take any creed The change is that when a member joins the church he may sign the creed or not

Mr Northup—Then we are about to make a very important change This change has not been understood by members of the church I think a large majority did not understand that we were receiving members without signing the creed In such an important matter we should have at least a week to consider whether we shall stick to the old creed or take the new

A member here said I want to know what this creed is When I was admitted into the church I did not sign any creed I do not believe in creeds I should like to know what it is

Mr Himes clerk of the church read the creed which was quite a lengthy document and contained the following "We believe in the universal sinfulness and ruin of our race We believe that the wicked shall go away into everlasting punishment and the righteous into life eternal

Mr Morse—I think that matter has been talked over for several weeks and further consideration is needless I am one of the unfortunates who joined without a creed and I do not want one

Mr Hathaway endorsed the remarks of the last speaker and said that while he should not be willing to leave if Mr Marvin's resignation was accepted, he should feel that it was an invitation to leave He should not be willing to leave on such a request

F M Warren did not propose to discuss this matter of a creed He cited instances where parties had been asked to join a church which had a creed and when they refused to sign the creed because they did not believe parts of it they were received on profession of faith The question is [illegible] are we to receive into our church people who are leading christian lives if they will not subscribe to the creed?

Mr Jones said he had lived on the frontier where members of all churches joined in one where all creeds were left out Some of the members were old Calvinists Their creed was about five times as long as the piece you saw in THE OREGONIAN last week I do not believe creeds amount to anything If we get to the happy place we will not be asked what our creed was

W H Smith—Mr Marvin's objections to creeds are based on very good grounds They were got up by human beings to conform to their own ideas I was taken into this church without knowing it had a creed I could not sign the creed just read While the church may have a creed I do not think it right to make people sign it

L M Parrish—I believe that the history of most all churches is that in order to secure the harmonious action of the members it is thought best to have some statement or creed if you please to which all shall subscribe The founders of this church thought best to adopt a creed It has been curtailed and a much simpler one adopted If we have a creed the best thing to do when a member joins is to have him sign it If some sign and some do not it is better to do away with the creed I think this abolishing of a creed something of great importance which needs prayerful consideration He spoke of the style of receiving members under Messrs Cruzan and Atkinson and never supposed [illegible] was being set aside

Mr Collier—I joined the church under Mr Cruzan I think a creed unnecessary It might be all very well and one might subscribe to it or not It was no difference so long as he was a Christian

Dr Glenn—I want to say that I know nothing I have been working with the church for twenty years and have never heard the creed till to-night I am heartily in sympathy with Mr Marvin in regard to receiving members

James Steel—I suppose we had a creed before Mr Marvin came I don't remember to have heard it during the time Mr Cruzan was here I remember the creed having been adopted and though I might be able to accept it I would not feel like compelling anyone else to believe as I did in order to join the church

F K Arnold—I do not believe in creeds at all They are of human origin and are the shibboleth of sectarianism All the religious persecutions in history came from people wishing to force others to sign creeds Go into some little country town and you will find half a dozen weakly churches of different denominations If they would combine they would do more good Most of the orthodox churches are willing to waive their most vital doctrines to allow people who will not subscribe to them to join [Applause checked by the chairman

Mrs Ames—I am not in favor of turning away a person who leads a Christian life because he could not subscribe to a creed

E W Allen—I thought I was a most liberal man in regard to creeds It seems to me that all who have joined this church without subscribing to the creed are not members of it [A voice—I am glad to know it] Every one has a creed—a positive belief Brother Arnold said he wanted no creed but before he was through he gave one I do not believe in a long creed but believe in four or five fundamental principles The Congregational church should be the first in the land The liberalism that is the rope of sand which is being wrought into it is the destroying element The future prosperity of the church depends on what we do here to-night There is not one of you who has not a creed I would not give a cent for a man who hadn't one

Here several calls were made for the question

A lady in a back seat said Brother Allen says we all have a creed Which one is the church to take?

Mr Northup hoped the brethren would not press matters

The chairman said opportunity would be given for all to speak

Mr Northup said he had a creed in his house for years which he would now read [Hereupon he read it It was the creed of the Unitarian church] If they were going to have any creed he would favor that

Mr Allen inquired if the acceptance of Mr Marvin's proposition required the cancelling of the creed of the church

Mr Marvin said it would require special notice to do that if the adoption of his proposition would be equivalent to that He went on to compare the creed to ancient ruins he had seen which were nice to look at but not good to live in Considerable discussion ensued as to whether the adoption of Mr Marvin's proposition would do away with the creed or not.

Mr Northup moved to accept the proposition of Mr Marvin and to amend by adding and that all creeds be abolished

Peter Taylor wished to know who comprised the meeting and who were voters

Thus far the meeting had conducted its deliberations with great calmness, but now some signs of impatience and excitement began to be manifested Several parties wanted to speak at once Mr Northup was asked to withdraw his amendment Some insisted on voting by ballot others called for the question

A motion to lay Mr Northup's amendment on the table was carried

Mr Parrish rose for information and tried to make a speech before asking it A motion to adjourn was lost The original motion was called for Some wanted to vote by ballot some called for a [illegible] and the meeting began to assume the appearance of an Oregon legislature while filibustering to prevent the passage of a bill

At length a vote was taken and Mr Marvin's proposition was accepted

Mr Allen said that a true expression could never be given by a church meeting when the pastor was present

Mr Marvin insisted on a vote by ballot or he would absent himself till one was taken

Finally the ballot was spread and resulted in Mr Marvin's proposition being accepted by a vote of [illegible] to 12

Mr Marvin said The change you have made is a great one You have simply ratified what you have been doing for nearly two years Your creed stands on your book but your pastor is not obliged to use it He concluded by expressing a hope that all would work together for the great ends they had in view

A PUGET SOUND OPINION

The Whatcom Reveille of February [illegible] says Dr Marvin pastor of the Portland Congregational church has just been put through the same course of sprouts that Beecher Talmage and Swing have suffered Marvin expressed some doubts about the Adam creation theory and Jonah and the whale story whereupon the long haired men and the short haired maids of his congregation made an attempt to church him But as Portland's Congregational church is made up principally of members who do not believe the antiquated fish stories of Mr Jonah [illegible] pastor was retained by a large vote The Rev Dr Marvin has made himself famous and his salary will probably be raised so [illegible] Nothing pleases a Portland church member better than to hear a sermon without any hell in it

MURDER IN THE SECOND DEGREE.

Such is the Verdict of the Jury in the Bloxam Trial—The Prisoner Betrays no Visible Agitation

The state circuit court room was crowded yesterday to hear the closing arguments in the Bloxam trial Judge Page spoke in behalf of the prisoner until about 11 30 when District Attorney Caples began the closing argument of the state Following is a brief synopsis of his remarks to the jury

If that [illegible] I can most heartily congratulate the [illegible] that we are now near the close of this trial to which you have given such close attention And perhaps it will not be amiss after the speech from the stand point of Mr Campbell and the beautiful oration of Judge Page to turn your attention to this case Whether the old man Fisher was of a high type of civilization I will not say He now lies cold in death The hairs on that old man's head are now lying in the frosty embrace of death Let us turn our attention toward William Bloxam He has had a good defense and I am glad of it You have watched the evidence with due care and have noticed how hard it was for them to adopt any particular theory I have made mistakes the same as anyone and I have felt for several days and I feel now that I made a mistake in letting Mrs Fisher who was jointly indicted with Bloxam go but she's gone now and Bloxam is the only one we are now considering [illegible] here and [illegible] that they did it in premeditated malice What a man does and what he says is the only reasonable index of a man's mind Here is a family This man Bloxam [illegible] that family [illegible] the man Bloxam [illegible] this house to [illegible] this girl the Fisher's [illegible] this man and the old man would [illegible] Bloxam [illegible] as he said of Fisher and [illegible] that I am [illegible] But we have some very clear evidence [illegible] the [illegible] Let us give our attention to that The old man [illegible] to keep company with [illegible] It has been said that Fisher did not care [illegible] his laughter [illegible] why [illegible] Bloxam keep company with [illegible] to irritate and ruffle the old man [illegible] town their first and [illegible] gentlemen [illegible] was black [illegible] I ought to be so [illegible] the utmost we find [illegible] quiet [illegible] his loins in order to keep out this fellow Bloxam The latter keeps going there and finally goes down and shoots Fisher—kills him He goes home and sets his rifle in the corner of the room and goes to Malone's and right there he begins to cover up his tracks He begins to contradict himself about drawing a bead and other matters pertaining to the deed The evidence of Benjamin Jline relative to the shots shows that Bloxam shot [illegible] fully five minutes after the first shots were discharged This is the man Bloxam who said "The [illegible] Fisher don't want me to run with his laughter and I'll get even with the old [illegible] — he [illegible] I leave Oregon" That's the kind of a nice young man the defense are talking about He goes and arms himself with a five shooter and with denunciations says I will kill the old man That's the kind of a lecherous villain the defense would argue should keep company with our sisters and daughters Is this the kind of a fellow that is proper to keep company with young girls at 9 or 10 o'clock at night? Two weeks before the murder Bloxam swaggered into Tom Merghe's with a new five shooter and a belt filled with cartridges around him and said If the old man Fisher gets in my way I'll [illegible] him plenty

The speaker closed by urging the jury to remember the bad effect that would ensue if this man was allowed to go free and asking that they do justice according to their oaths without fear or favor or any mawkish sentiment

Judge Smith then charged the jury and about [illegible] o'clock they retired for deliberation In two hours they had agreed Soon after they came into court and the foreman handed their written verdict to the court The silence in the court was intense as the clerk announced the verdict to be murder in the second degree Although totally unexpected Bloxam took the verdict very coolly and had but little to say regarding it His attorneys state that they will ask for a new trial

Villard Under Blankets

Boston Globe

One night when the army was being transferred from the Rapidan river to Fredericksburg and Villard and I were trying to keep along with it we found ourselves a good ways from any eligible house and compelled to camp soldier fashion on the ground We picketed our horses then brought a dozen nice soft three cornered rails from a worm fence near by laid them gracefully side by side on the wet grass as close together as possible, and went to bed As it was cold we put our blankets together and laid them over us and as there were no mosquitoes we got along fairly well The only disturbance was made by Villard I woke suddenly about 1 o'clock and found Villard sitting up in bed carefully pulling the blankets out over me and saying Excuse me This happened three or four times during the night my conscientious bed fellow pulling the blankets over me as if he had more than his share and each time saying "Excuse me I didn't suppose that such a man as that ever would be rich Maybe he has been so foolish as to give away his wife's property and start from bed rock again—who knows?

A proof reader in the government printing office at Washington relates that when Senator Jones' great silver bill speech was in process of publication the senator brought his secretary to see it in proof reading The secretary suggested some change when the senator said Who in thunder is making this speech you or I? The voluminous effort was printed in accordance with the senator's wishes without further debate

THE GREELY RELIEF EXPEDITION.

What Lieutenant Schwatka Thinks of the Chances of Rescue.

The Chicago Tribune of February 19 has a very interesting letter from Mr. J. M. Baltimore, its correspondent in this city, giving an interview with Lieutenant Frederick G. Schwatka on the Greely relief expedition. Following are the principal points touched upon:

"Who would you consider, then, responsible if Greely is not rescued by this coming expedition?"

"Why, the commanding officer of the expedition, of course—the same as all successes and failures of Arctic expeditions in the past have been due almost wholly to the commanding officer."

"But there has been so much said by the press concerning a multiplicity of orders, could not a commanding officer be seriously hampered by them?"

"No; not in the least. It is the very thing to be desired in case of failure, while in cases of success every one will know commanding officers have depended wholly on their own good judgment or have been extraordinarily fortunate in an open season."

"Are there such great variations in the seasons?"

Lieutenant Schwatka then took down a volume from an Arctic library of two or three hundred books and showed your correspondent a map of the Greenland seas. As the edge of the ice pack was determined in 1876 and again in 1881, and there a glance would show a difference of over a hundred miles on the same meridian for the corresponding months of these years.

"It was during one of the exceptionally open seasons in Smith's sound," said Lieutenant Schwatka, "that Greely's party reached Lady Franklin bay. As no good Arctic authority expected them to reach this point, when it was selected as an international meteorological station, it was a matter of great and general surprise when the party did reach it so readily. As a consequence, all this trouble in getting him out has has been more or less anticipated."

"Have any other parties ever reached as high as Greely's station, in Lady Franklin bay?"

"Three vessels have succeeded in getting past Lady Franklin bay in Smith's sound. These vessels were: the Polaris in 1871, under Captain Hall; the Alert and Discovery in 1875, under Captain Nares. The former was crushed in the ice, and lost in Smith's sound, and Nares' vessels, after wintering in the ice, succeeded in getting out the following year."

"How many have ever attempted to reach as high as this, or higher, in Smith's sound?"

"Probably three or four times as many as those just named—some of which have been lost in the attempt."

"From all this, what are the chances, in your judgment, of the present ship or ships reaching Lady Franklin bay?"

"I think they are very poor, indeed, unless there is a lucky, open season."

THE CHANCES OF RESCUE.

"What, then, is your opinion of the chances of rescuing Greely?"

"They are excellent, in my judgment. In my opinion there is but one thing that will prevent his being rescued."

"And what is that?"

"And that is if his party, or a great part of it, have been afflicted with the scurvy. If they have not, they can easily rescue themselves and reach the Danish settlements of Upper Greenland. Probably they will be encountered there by the relief ships doing this."

"What are the chances of his party being afflicted with the scurvy to the extent of which you have spoken?"

"I am not well enough acquainted, and there has not been enough written regarding the habits of the game and fishes of that country, for me to venture an opinion whether or not Greely and his party have been able to secure a continuous supply of fresh food therefrom; and whether he is properly and adequately supplied with experienced hunters to obtain it, even if plentiful. The prevention of scurvy depends wholly upon the supply of fresh food, and that in the Arctic regions means fresh meat, of course, as there are no vegetables."

"What kind of game would be most abundant there?"

"During the summer nearly all kinds of Arctic game; in the winter probably only polar bears, whose meat is very unpalatable to some people, and possibly seal, which can only be captured by the best and most experienced native hunters. There would be no walrus, for they leave there in the winter, as Smith's sound is frozen from shore to shore, and they only stay in open water. Neither would there be reindeer or musk-oxen, as they also emigrate southward on the approach of winter."

"Where do you think Lieutenant Greely and his party are now?"

"His orders were, I believe, to endeavor to reach the mouth of Smith's sound in the fall of 1883—if not relieved by that time. He may have come down to that place, and if so, and he winters there, his chances of scurvy will be much less than if he was to remain among the Esquimaux. But the small amount of provisions he will find there for his party may, in case of a famine among the natives, drive him back to Lady Franklin bay, where he can procure an abundance."

"Are such famines common or frequent among the Esquimaux people in the winter?"

"There is generally a tight pinch or two every winter for food, and every winter what might be called a true famine, more or less severe."

"Do you think the relief party ought to be well prepared for sledging?"

"Most assuredly. If Greely's party is at Lady Franklin bay and badly afflicted with the scurvy, and the ice should be as bad and compact as last season, a long and severe sledge journey would be absolutely necessary to relieve him; and if these circumstances do not exist, as he can then readily rescue himself, the sledges are really of much more importance than the ships. In fact, the principal object of the ships would be to take the sledges up and act as a base of supplies for the sledging party. If the ice pack is partially open, but not sufficient for the vessel to navigate, the sledge party may be a sort of combined sledging and boating (small boats) party, as has often been done in the Arctic."

DIPHTHERIA.

How This Singular Disease is Often Transmitted by Chickens.

It has been known for some time that pheasants, pigeons, turkeys, domestic fowl, and such like were liable to be attacked by diphtheria. The Wiener Allgemeine Medicinische Zeitung informs us that Prof. Gerhardt of Wurzburg has carried out a series of observations for the purpose of determining whether the disease may be communicated by this means, and has come to an affirmative conclusion. In September, 1881, 2,000 fowls were sent from the neighborhood of Verona to Nesselhausen, in Baden, where there is a great fowl-rearing establishment. Some of them must have been affected with diphtheritis before they started, and in the end 400 fowls died of it. In the summer of last year 600 chickens were hatched from eggs collected from many different places. Six weeks after their birth diphtheritis manifested itself among the young chickens, and so badly that in a short time they all died. Five cats that were kept in the establishment also became ill of the same malady and died. A parrot that hung in a cage in the house was also attacked, but recovered.

Last November an Italian hen, which had been "painted" about the jaws with carbolic acid by the keeper, bit the man's wrist and foot. Presently he became ill with a smart fever, considerable swelling at the wounded parts, and all the symptoms of traumatic diphtheritis. His recovery was very tedious. This was not the only case of the transmission of the disease to men. Two-thirds of all the laboring persons employed about the establishment became ill with the ordinary diphtheritis, and one man conveyed the infection to his three children. It is worth noting that during all this time no other diphtheritic cases occurred at Nesselhausen, or in the neighborhood. The inference seems obvious that all these cases originated with the sick fowls.

THE WORLD UNDER CANVAS.

Everything that Walks, Wings or Crawls. A Sacred Elephant with a White Face.

THE LARGEST SHOW IN EXISTENCE.

W. W. Cole's Great Three-Ring Circus and the Wonders it Contains.

Those wiseacres who imagine that they have "seen everything," especially everything in the circus line, may now prepare themselves for a surprise and a setback from their ever ready assumption that there is "nothing new," as W. W. Cole has just completed an amusement project which may well be termed "the largest show in the world." A perfect whirlpool of diverting marvels as it were. Everything that walks the earth or wings the air, crawling reptiles and creeping insects have all been brought together in Cole's colossal shows to such an extent that nothing more remains obtainable.

For years the great Cole show had been conceded the criterion of all canvas exhibitions. Quantity and quality have always been blended and its growth has far exceeded any similar enterprise. This season brought more than the usual supply of additional attractions to this enormous outfit. A white-faced, sacred elephant was bribed from the palatial stables of a Burmese king, and added to the thousands of curious items in this mammoth enterprise, at an expense of 50,000 rupees. Fully $30,000 has been laid out during the past winter in increasing the show in all its departments. Foreign sensations of every kind have been secured, a "human fly" or lady ceiling walker disports herself upon a horizontal platform suspended from the apex of the canvas; a band of real Bedouin Arabs, twelve in number, build lofty pyramids with their sinewy forms, and perform feats of strength, acrobatic movements and mimic warfare, while with brawny hands they produce showers of knives, swords and guns. Samson, an elephant as great as the mastodons of old and larger than any of his species that to-day exist, is also to be seen. Three circus rings, with an elevated stage covering the center ring, are constantly filled with novel performances. In fact, several visits to the show are necessary, in order to see and comprehend its extreme magnitude, and in this connection it may be noted that in many of the eastern cities season tickets were purchased by visitors who repeated their investigations almost daily. Among the various works of art in this immense colosseum is a gallery of wax statuary, representing all the presidents from Washington down to Arthur; all the crowned heads and famous beauties are also reproduced in wax. Russian roller skaters, unicycle and bicycle riders, grotesque dancers, Egyptian, Nautch and Hungarian sports are presented on the elevated stage, and the most daring mid-air performances take place over the heads of the auditors. Really, it is impossible to conceive or picture the extent of this marvelous exhibition, to which people travel many miles to see, and then rush pell mell to points of vantage in the great canvas. The menagerie is so complete in its ensemble that no mention of it is necessary, as it is an "open book of nature," with no blank or missing leaves. Owing to the extraordinary magnitude and excellent qualities of this grand affair, no other show will this season visit any of the points where Cole precedes, and arrangements have been made to that effect. Exhibitions will be given in this city at an early date, and special excursions run from all surrounding points at greatly reduced rates.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY—ABUSIVE LANGUAGE.

The trial of Charles Fernau for assault and battery and using abusive language, and of John Dorsey for assault and battery, upon complaint of J. H. Baylor, against whom the offenses were alleged to have been committed, occurred in the recorder's court yesterday afternoon. It appears that plaintiff was endeavoring to seek entrance to Fernau's saloon on Sunday last, when Fernau intercepted and prevented him, at which time the offenses are alleged to have occurred, Dorsey assisting Fernau in the assault. Defense claimed that plaintiff had no right to enter defendant's place of business on Sunday, and that he only took the necessary means to prevent him; and that there was insufficient evidence to prove that the language used was addressed to plaintiff, as charged in the complaint. Prosecution, however, claimed that the language used was evidence of the criminal intent of defendant, and that the interference of Dorsey to separate Fernau and Baylor, as shown by the evidence, was proof of the assault. Recorder Stewart took the cases under advisement. S. B. Harrington for prosecution and Ed. Mendenhall for defense.

NOTES.

Rev. S. P. Wilson, who has been suffering with pneumonia for several days, is in a fair way of recovery.

Mr. Wm. Dalton, accompanied by his wife and youngest son, contemplates a trip to his old home in England, shortly.

The residence of E. Bennett, corner of E and Seventh streets, was rotten-egged Monday night—probably as payment for his recent intermeddling with the business of saloon and billiard hall keepers.

The horse recently used for assisting teams from the I street ferry landing, and which was treated in a cruel manner while thus engaged, was not owned or engaged by the ferry company, as first supposed, but by others whose names could not be learned.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

WEDNESDAY, March 5.

Trade with the grocery houses is quite active. A glance at the manifest of the last steamer shows the arrival of spring stocks in all lines. Heavy rains are again reported from California. With no assessor of rain would be quite welcome.

We are now informed that there will be no meeting of cannerymen at Astoria on Saturday. No regular call had been issued, but our announcement was upon the strength of one or more being asked to be present Saturday, as it was then thought a meeting would be had. Very little preparation is making for the coming season at this time. The large contract for next season's pack, recently reported, is now stated to be at $1 35, free on board, and includes the pack of two canneries.

Advices from New Zealand to 1st of February tell of a backward season, with a dull and unpromising grain trade. We quote from a trade circular: "At the corresponding date last year business in the new season's crop had fairly started, but this year practically nothing has been done in this direction, and the few transactions that have taken place during the month have been in old grain. There has been some local and inter-provincial demand for milling wheat, which is now in very few hands, and owing to Australia—New South Wales, principally—finding its supplies of feeding stuffs running short, there has been a tolerably active enquiry for oats. Taking the month as a whole, business has been extremely inactive, and this dullness seems likely to extend some way into February. Exports of last year's grain to Europe have almost entirely ceased. Our weather in January has been very disappointing and rain and hail storms have done a great deal of immediate damage in some districts, whilst, accompanied as they have been by an unusually low temperature, they have everywhere delayed the ripening of the crops. So much in fact have these been affected by adverse weather prevalent throughout the summer months, that they may be reckoned to be about three weeks later than the average. With a liberal proportion of fine weather in February fairly abundant crops of good quality may be confidently expected. New crop wheat is expected to be worth 3s 3d, is 6d f. o. b. In contradistinction to last year at this time there has been scarcely one single enquiry from Europe for our wheat crop, clearly indicating on the one hand the apathetic state into which the home market has sunk, and on the other how business here has been so affected by the lateness of the harvest that no attempt has been made to elicit offers from England. Money shows no signs of any abatement in the stringency which has characterized the market for such a long time back. Freights very dull, shippers not engaging ahead. Tonnage plenty, and 35s 3d for orders U. K. is expected to be the market rate when the season opens."

During February last there was sent to Puget sound, via Kalama, 1530 sks wheat, 13 833 qr sks flour, 125 mats rice, 1284 sks bran, 218 sks chop, 42 sks salt, 37 sks oats, 2 sks onions, 70 sks potatoes, 87 bxs fruit, 21 cs 41 bbls beef, 53 pkgs butter, 28 cs eggs, 112 cs lard, 9 kits salmon bellies, 75 cs oils, 20 bbls cement, 2 pkgs dried fruit, 4 sks 36 bls meal, 508 cs coal oil, 23 tcs 7 crts 4 cs 10 sks hams, 73 sks 11 cs 7 crts bacon.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

Lower Prices Generally the Rule—Produce Quotations.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 5. [Special.]—The wheat market has not been so active during the week as the previous week, and there is little or no inquiry. The Liverpool market continues inactive and holds out no inducement to exporters. Besides they are understood to have pretty well supplied all their wants for the present. As might be expected under the circumstances prices have a declining tendency, and the market for No. 1 shipping is about 2½ cents per cental lower than a week ago. From February the 29th to March 4th inclusive eight vessels loaded with grain have cleared at this port for Great Britain with 291,586 centals of wheat, valued at $437,277. The fact that wheat is going out of the country, even if on owner's account, is considered of some advantage.

Arrivals at this port during the past few days have been heavy, but consisted principally of cargoes loaded at other points for clearance from the custom house. Exertions have also been made to get wheat cargoes under way before the assessor shall have an opportunity to include their valuation. Transactions at the call board for the week have not been heavy, and at a lower range of values than during the previous week.

CHARTERS.

The charter market keeps pretty steady at the late advance, particularly for small iron vessels, which seem to be preferred by shippers. Only one vessel was chartered during the week. The amount of tons under engagement to load wheat is 36,475, against 33,200 at the corresponding period last year, being a decrease of 5775 tons. Disengaged tonnage in port is 117,170, against 44,725 at the same date in 1883, being an increase of 32,445 tons. Asking rates for wheat cargoes are reported, for iron vessels to Liverpool direct, at 30s; to Cork for orders to U. K., 35s.

Flour—There is a fair business in progress, with prices in buyer's favor. Exports for the past week were 13,800 bbls, valued at $74,028.

Oats—Receipts during the week have been pretty liberal. Inferior descriptions are in over supply, there being little or no demand for these grades. Strictly choice for milling purposes is scarce, and can be readily placed at full figures.

Barley—Trade on 'change is in a very unsatisfactory condition, and owing to the unsettled state of the market, notwithstanding low prices ruling, buyers act cautiously. Receipts have been more liberal than the previous week.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Hops—The market is without feature. Holders are firm in their views for an advance in prices, which checks business. Exporters are still willing to pay the same figures at which large lots were taken a few weeks ago.

Potatoes—The supply is in excess of the demand, and the quality is generally poor. The shipping demand is light. Sweets are scarce and high.

Domestic fruit—Several car loads of oranges have arrived from Los Angeles and Riverside during the week, and the price of choice is a trifle lower.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

Analysis by Dr. A. Voelcker, F. R. S., Consulting Chemist Royal Agricultural Society, England, shows only a trace of nitrates in Blackwell's Bull Durham Tobacco. The soil of the Golden Belt of North Carolina, in which this tobacco is grown, contains but little nitrates to the leaf. That is the secret of its delicious mildness. Nothing so pure and luxurious for smoking. Don't forget the brand. None genuine without the trade-mark of the Bull. All dealers have it.

When fellows consult drive away sleep, your best solace is found in Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco.

POTASH.

To take of Potash is one of the strongest of the mineral poisons known to medicine, and has produced untold suffering in the world. Taken for a long time and in large doses it dries up the gastric juices, impairs digestion, the stomach refuses food, and the patient declines in health and weight. Persons with Blood or Skin Diseases should be careful how they take these mineral poisons, as in most instances the effect of them is to permanently impair the constitution. To take the place of these poisons we offer you a safe, sure, prompt and permanent relief from your troubles. Swift's Specific is entirely a vegetable preparation, and it is easy to convince you of its merit.

I have cured permanently Blood Taint in the third generation by the use of Swift's Specific, after I had most signally failed with Mercury and Potash.

F. A. TOOMER, M. D., Perry, Georgia.

A young man requests me to thank you for his cure of Blood Poison by the use of your Specific, after all other treatment had failed.

TRIED HOT SPRINGS TWO LONG YEARS WITHOUT RELIEF.

Mercurial Rheumatism made me a cripple. After trying the springs two years, and the Mercury and Potash treatment until I was a skeleton and unable to do anything, I was prevailed upon to take a course of S. S. S. After taking three bottles, my appetite began to improve, and I gained flesh rapidly. When I had taken twelve bottles I felt as well as I ever did. It is now twelve months since I took S. S. S. My health and appetite are good, and I am able to attend to all the business I can get.

"PUT ME SQUARE ON MY FEET."

Twelve months ago I was persuaded to try S. S. S. for Malarial Rheumatism, which had crippled me so that I was unable to attend to business. Less than twelve bottles have put me square on my feet; have steadily improved, haven't felt better in ten years.
